

SPRATTON HALL – YEARS 3 – 5 RECOMMENDED READING

Welcome to the English Reading List for Years 3 – 5!

To help you with the difficult task of choosing new books, I have put together this updated list, combining the best traditional literature with some modern material suitable for the first three years of Prep School. Clearly it is impossible to provide an exhaustive list, nor is it desirable as it is important that you, as readers, discover for yourselves the books you enjoy reading most. In many cases, only one or two books have been listed per author, but it is hoped that you will explore the many different books each has to offer.

I have targeted classic and contemporary literature to appeal to all. Those books marked * are aimed particularly at older or more advanced readers within the age group. Inevitably, all lists of this kind are out of date immediately, and it is my intention to update this list periodically with new titles.

I have arranged the books into categories, as many of you will already have formed preferences for one type of writing over another, but please explore the various different types of literature on this list. You may find that you like things you never even considered reading.

Happy reading!
